The new mission of the combined museum is: Inspiring wonder, curiosity, and lifelong learning in our children and community through interactive play and discovery. As a merged entity, we look forward to expanding our museum's commitment to developing exhibits and programming that combine the best features of both – fusing STEM (science, technology, engineering, and math), literacy, and arts education into an integrated approach to learning. We want to help prepare early learners for school and spark all children's imaginations and their desire to learn more.
